

40 Drawings To Think About Whether We Can Keep This Up, 2013-2016
Facsimile sketchings book, Rombout Oomen, oktober 2013

Summary

40 Drawings is an evolving series of works on paper, which keeps me to puzzle my instinct, intuition, intellect, non-rational ideas and drawing-skills into one large body, as a comic book or rebus about... well, about whether we can keep this up. Whatever that may be, but it should be something which I feel is pretty extraordinary and important enough to visualize.

The reproductions in this special limited, numbered and signed facsimile scrapbook are drawn by Rombout Oomen in the period December 2011 - March 2016. This scrapbook is published including ten high quality reproductions. Starting in October 2013, every month a new reproduction of a drawing is made for this particular edition, and will be sent to the owners of the facsimile.

The owners are free to add the reproductions on any page he/she wishes in order to make up his/her own particular composition and visual story in order to create a limited body of similar, yet unique books.

The original drawings are made with pen and East-Indian ink, oil stick, acrylic paint, pencil and marker on 65 x 50 cm, 320 gr/m² acid free paper.

The original drawing can be purchased in consultation with Rombout Oomen.

The drawings are subtitled: "Series III" (along the additional number of the drawing, sketches are included in numbering). Occasionally the drawings have another subtitle.
